FIRST STEP TAKEN AT MONESSEN IN PROMISED BIG WATER FIGHT

Borough Will Wage War to Obtain Entire Control of The System

BOND ISSUE IS CONSIDERED

Bond Issue May be Voted Upon to Obtain Funds—Monessen Kicking on Flat Rate But Suspiciously Eyes System in Effect Here.

That some sort of a fight will be waged by Monessen borough and private citizens for the purpose of obtaining control of the water service in the borough came out definitely at a meeting of the Monessen council Friday evening. The water committee was instructed to hire a consulting engineer as well as an attorney to obtain data for starting a movement toward that end.

Monessen people had been planning to take over the water system of the Monessen Water Company in 1919, according to a previous contract. Within the last three or four years the Tri Cities Water company purchased the rights of the company to run it in connection with the Charleroi and the Donora systems. Since that time Monessen has been finding objections to certain methods until the present movement for a change has resulted.

Monessen borough wishes to carve just the Monessen slice from the business of the Tri Cities' Water company and to that end will conduct a fight. The consulting engineer to be hired will likely be one that designed a McKeesport water plant. The attorney will in all probability be one who fought a Tarentum case as a representative of property holders and citizens.

The idea of Monessen people is simply to acquire control now instead of waiting until 1919. They are complaining of trouble over rates, among other things. However Monessen is worrying along with a flat rate and appears suspicious when any suggestion is made of change to the meter system of charging like that in effect in Charleroi and other points. Committees have been in attendance recently at water hearings at Greensburg and the councilmanic action Friday night comes as a sequel. A special election may be called for a vote on the issue of bonds to provide funds to carry on a fight.

SCHOOL TAXES WILL BE COLLECTED BY LAW

Notice is hereby given that all delinquent personal school taxes and all delinquent 1912-13 and 14 property school taxes, by order of the School Board will be placed in hands of the School Solicitor for collection and if not paid on or before October 1, suit will be entered and the costs of same added to delinquent.

COMPLIMENTARY PROGRAM PLEASURES

Home Talent Musicians Are Heard in Testimonial Concert

MISS BOSSON IS HONORED

A home talent program of unusual merit was presented at the high school auditorium Friday evening complimentary to Miss Norma Bosson, the well known local violinist. Those who took part were Misses May Barth, Ethel Barth, Bethel Bowman, Ethel Hawthorne, Mary M. Chester, Isabella Dorbritz and Norma Bosson and Prof. I. T. Daniel, Doss T. James, Warren Kinder all of Charleroi and Prof. Charles A. Dobson of California Normal.

The program was made up chiefly of solo numbers, interspersed with readings by Miss Mary Chester.

The opening number was a piano duet, the march from "Tannhauser" Wagner, by Misses May Barth and Bethel Bowman, it being especially well rendered. Misses Barth and Bowman were the accompanists.

Miss Bosson played two solo numbers, "Hungarian Dance" by Brahms and "Serenade" by Johann M. Blöse. She was warmly encored and played extra numbers "Meditation" from Tchaikovsky and "The Rosary" Ethelbert Nevin. Her work was highly enjoyed, her rare talent as a violinist being displayed in her splendid solo selections.

Miss Ethel Hawthorne sang "My Heart at Thy Sweet Voice", Saint-Saens. Miss Bosson played the violin obligato. In good voice, Miss Hawthorne greatly pleased her audience.

Miss Ethel Barth had one solo number, "Goodbye." Tosti, which she sang beautifully and by which she won eager applause. She responded with an encore selection.

Warren Kinder rendered in his usual pleasing manner, the song, "By the Sea," a Schubert composition. In addition he and Ethel Barth rendered a duet, "O That We Two Were."

NEXT CRIMINAL COURT SESSION TO BE LONG

District Attorney Miller Intent Upon Cleaning up Things Before he Takes Leave of Office—Eight Homicide Cases Listed

The coming of criminal court will be an unusually long session. The court Friday made an order authorizing three weeks of trial court beginning the first Monday in November. Usually only two weeks are allowed for the disposition of criminal cases. The grand jury of the November term will be summoned for the first Monday of November. This year the first Monday comes on the first day of the month. The court has also authorized the drawing of a panel of 85 petit jurors to sit during the three weeks of trial court. These jurors, with the usual 24 grand jurors were drawn by the sheriff and jury commissioners Friday.

District Attorney R. G. Miller desires to clean up the criminal docket at the coming term, as he retires from the office of prosecuting attorney at the close of the year. Eight homicide cases are set for the coming term, the largest number ever for trial at one time in the history of the county. Mr. Miller was prepared to try some of these at the last term of criminal court, but counsel for the defense, in some of the cases, had only been retained a short time and were not ready to go to trial, consequently they were continued.

On account of there being three weeks of criminal court the term of common pleas court that follows criminal court will be put forward one week. Criminal court will not be adjourned until Saturday, December 24, the day before Christmas.

The homicide cases set are the killing of Cohen, the merchant, at Marianna; Moffitt, the aged blacksmith, at West Brownsville; Raguso, at Housatonic; Filleth, at Hills Station; Umeth, at Cokeburg; Hilton, at Monongahela; Bissell, at Canonsburg, and Mrs. Fleming, Washington.

Byrne, lecturer of Charleroi council was in charge of the program. Musical numbers were contributed by Bartley and Peter Wood of Roscoe and William Feeney of Charleroi. An orchestra played. Lunch was served following the rendition of the program.

The entire third floor of the Mail building has just been fitted up by the council as lodge and club rooms. There is one good sized lodge room, well equipped, and adjoining it the club and game room, also newly and well equipped.

TOTALS BUT NOT RESULTS TO BE CHANGED BY THE OFFICIAL COUNT

DRUNKEN FOREIGNER WITH BOY NARROWLY ESCAPES TROUBLE

Staggering Man Cuffs Lad When Displeased and Arouses Anger of Citizens and the Police.

A foreigner from Monessen, leading a boy of about four years who was crying bitterly, narrowly escaped trouble this morning. He succeeded as it was in stirring to indignation several who saw him and ended in being ordered by the police to return home as quickly as he knew how.

The man had visited enough saloons it seemed to have acquired a substantial jag. The boy displeased him and he cuffed him severely. One or two citizens remonstrated and Burgess S. L. Woodward and Chief of Police Albright took the case in hand, seeing to it that the man and the boy boarded the next car for home.

AWFUL TRAFFIC PUZZLES POLICE

White Slave Operations
Said to be Extensively Carried on in Beaver

SEVERAL GIRLS DISAPPEAR

Police and other authorities of Beaver county are baffled at what appears to be the successful operations of white slave agents on a large and successful scale. Within the last three months, it is reported on good authority, no fewer than fourteen or fifteen young girls have mysteriously disappeared from their homes or guardianship in the Beaver valley.

"The situation is really alarming," said one clothed with police authority. "In only a few of the cases has any trace of the girls been found after they left this county." Most of them, it is said, have taken a westward course, some stopping in Ohio cities and others going beyond. Police officers and other investigators sent from Beaver have, in most cases, been unable to locate the girls or to find any trace of them after they crossed the Ohio state line.

Asked about the situation Miss Cora Blackledge, probation officer of the Juvenile court, said that she is constantly on the alert to detect influences that are at work to entice young girls from their homes and into a life whose course is downward. "Although we have had several important clues and are working on some now," she said, "this problem is too big to be solved in a day and agents of the iniquitous system of traffic in souls seem to be everywhere."

Work of Tabulating Washington County Votes Started on Friday

PITTSBURG SENSATIONALIZED

Fraud Charged and One Election Official From First Ward is Placed Under Arrest—City Police Guarding Ballot Boxes.

Totals but not results will be changed when the official count of votes in Washington county is finished. The official count was started on Friday by the eight men chosen for the work, and on the first afternoon's work a slight alteration in the results as announced the day after election was reported.

When the primary results were announced on Wednesday Browneller for director of the poor was found to be just two votes in the lead of Adams. This margin was widened Friday by the count. Browneller gaining 10 votes. Now Browneller has a plurality of 12 votes. Other candidates before the count is finished are expected to find themselves advanced a little in the number of votes for them. However there is no indication that any of the actual results announced Wednesday will be changed.

In Pittsburg an arrest, for information sworn to and court orders for a search for missing ballot boxes, have resulted from the close contest at Tuesday's primary for the nomination for prothonotary, sought by William B. Kirker and David B. Johns.

The man arrested is Charles Chesney, aged 28, judge of election in the third district of the First ward, Pittsburg. Ballot boxes are being carefully guarded by the city police in Pittsburg until the official count is completed and results announced.

THE REPUBLICAN TICKET

From congress down, the Republican ticket, as nominated by the voters of Washington county Tuesday, is one of the strongest presented for the consideration of the electorate by any party here for a score of years, says the Washington News. There is no need for commenting on or pointing out the admirable qualifications of such men as Dr. Temple, John O. Watson, Frank B. Wickenham, Dr. Alexander Thomas Hill and in fact every man on the ticket. The personnel of the list is of the highest

That the men who received the endorsement of the voters in the primary will be cordially and unanimously supported by the full party strength in November is assured. It is a pleasing feature of the primaries that, despite the large field and the heated contests, little, if any, hostile feeling has developed. No better evidence of this condition could be found than in the public pledges of support to the victors being made by the vanquished. This spirit betokens a sound, healthy strength, against which any opposition from any outside source will prove futile.

There is a Republican landslide in prospect for Washington county in little more than a month from now, and as the day draws closer the tide swells larger.

MILLIONS NOT CITIZENS.

It is probable that a great many Americans will be surprised if not disquieted, by the official figures of the federal department of labor showing that there are 14,000,000 foreign-born persons in the United States who have not acquired citizenship. This undoubtedly included the wives of unnaturalized foreigners, whose citizenship is only technical and does not involve the right of suffrage.

The figures compiled by the department show, says the McKeesport News that there are 8,000,000 un-naturalized able-bodied men in this country divided with approximate reasonableness as follows, with reference to their presumable sympathies with the European belligerents:
2,500,000 Germans and Austrians;
a little more than twice that number of English, Russians, French and Italians. Official statistics are entitled to credence, but a great many people will be much surprised to learn that there are 8,000,000 able-bodied men in this country, unnaturalized and owing legal allegiance to the fighting powers of Europe, in addition to several million more belonging to nations not now embroiled.

While it is distinctly unfavorable to the broader interests of this country that there should be this tremendous number of men here who have not thought enough of American citizenship to become naturalized,
there is no occasion to be alarmed, ever the showing in the possible event of war. It is by no means a new even the unnaturalized ones, the subjects of foreign powers, would constitute any substantial menace if this country should ever become involved in a conflict with those powers. A very large majority of such residents undoubtedly came here to escape the rigors of continental militarism.

Immigrants who are capable of becoming good citizens should be encouraged to become such. The millions of men here who have not thought enough of American citizenship laws of America is one of the few instances where the medium is not happy. On the one hand the laws thrown open the gates of immigration and in the other they bound the immigrant to the duties of his own nation in the matter of citizenship. It is education does not sharpen the immigrant's appreciation of what citizenship means in the law must be quickened.

Perhaps, after all, the law would be the medium with which he is most familiar and would produce the best results. That effective results must be accomplished through this law and that without undue loss of time, is conclusively shown by the fact that there are 8,000,000 un-naturalized able-bodied men in America at this moment, with the gate of Ellis Island yawning for other millions who may pour through them as soon as the European war ends.

"In this country, where the will of the majority is the law," says the Punxsutawney Spirit, "we must improve the people before we can successfully improve the laws. Laws that do not fit the people, like clothes that do not fit the wearer, are apt to be the subject of ridicule."

Of course the idea of entering an independent ticket in the fight for borough offices at the fall election is bound to appeal to some. Still the futility of such a movement must be realized. Independent movements are notably failures. Add the fact that this is a Republican year and see how the chances for independent success seem to vanish.

Tax Collector J. W. Mathias has been authorized to take legal action
if necessary to collect school taxes.
People ought to pay their taxes promptly especially their school taxes, and if they don't they have no reason to complain if caught by a summons. Those who enjoy privileges should be willing to pay for them.

Buying advertising space is something that requires intelligence. If a merchant can get more value out of a booklet or program than he can a newspaper then should he advertise there. But if he can derive greater benefit from the circulation of a newspaper than he can a booklet of uncertain circulation naturally he should use that.

PICKED UP IN PASSING

N. G. Steitz, who travels for the American Type Founders company of Pittsburg stood in front of a Charleroi store the other night and mused as he read the signs on different articles denoting price and style.
"Fifty cents up," he read on a group of umbrellas near the doorway.

"Fifty cents up," he reiterated. "I wonder how much they are down."

During the trial of a case in a New York court it became necessary to take the testimony of a curiously reserved witness.

"What do you do?" asked the lawyer having him under examination.
"I am very well," was the unexpected answer.
"I'm not asking as to your health, I want to know what you do."
"I work."
"Where do you work?"
"In a factory."
"What kind of a factory?"
"It is a rather large factory."
"May I venture to inquire what you make in the factory?"
"You want to know what I make in the factory?"
"Precisely. Answer without further circumlocution. Tell us what you make."
"I make $10 a week."

About once in so often they'll get side-tracked on to something else, quite likely a cheaper kind, which he'll try to persuade himself is just as good.
It's funny, he will say to his friends,
"that I never discovered this cigar before." He'll talk about it and smoke it, and then in a way a bit shame-faced and ask in a way a bit shame-faced for some of the old kind. I put the familiar box before him and watch the affectionate touch that he gives the cigars."

THE SCENERY SPECIAL

By AUGUST WITTFELD.

"These stories of holdups and train robberies," said Monk, "always remind me of an actress who has been told of her gliding glassware. You never know of anyone doing much on the proceeds of historic highway holdups, and the man who attempts to hold up a modern express train may get away with the goods, but eventually the sheriff puts him on his visiting list."

"Right you are," replied the pug-nosed brakeman. "It takes nerve to hold up a train, but it takes more than nerve to pull the trick off successfully and retire on the proceeds. The men who possess all the qualifications requisite for such jobs generally land a sinecure behind the frosted-glass partition."

"Now you're talking classical English," commented Monk, "and expressing clarified thought in capsule form. I never knew but one man to pull off a holdup successfully, and then obliterate himself from the surroundings."

"It happened down South, where at one time the railroads were noted for their lack of speed, and where it was impossible to miss a train. All you had to do, if your train had left the station, was to follow it on foot, and you couldn't miss it unless you overlooked it or mistook its creeping for the inertia of a side-tracked section."

"Yes," commented the pug-nosed brakeman, "I knew of a man down there who brought suit against the S. L. O. road to recover for damages sustained in bumping into the rear end of the moonlight limited while walking along the track."

"The company tried to non-suit him by bringing a counter-charge of trespass; but his lawyer threatened to attack the validity of their charter on the ground that they could not prove that they were running trains, and they withdrew their charge."

"The plaintiff won his suit, and the company was ordered to upbraid the rear end of their trains to prevent a repetition of such accidents."

"Well, to get back to the holdup," said Monk, "I was touring the South some years back, and at this particular time my objective point was Boonville. As I had lots of leisure, I decided to make the trip by rail."

"I caught up to a freight bound for that point, and, sauntering up to it, I swung myself aboard the caboose and proceeded to accord myself with a cordial welcome. I took possession of the lower bunk without waiting for the porter to appear, and was soon in the land of dreams."

"I was awakened by the crew, who had come back to see if the rear end was all right. He asked me what the Stonewall Jackson I meant by intruding, and volunteered to punch my ticket or my head without fear or favor."

"I hypnotized him by making a few occult passes, and he extended me the cordial entente. It was pretty good stuff, even though it was tax free and did not bear the pure-food guaranty."

"If you will pardon the interruption," said the pug-nosed brakeman, "I want to pay tribute to the railroads of the South. The southern spirit of hospitality is not dead, and the Chesterfields of the rail will give you the glad welcome or the G. B. with all the grace born of heredity and long practice. They will fire you from a train in such courtly manner that you feel like apologizing for giving them the trouble."

"Your prognostication coincides with my observation," commented Monk. "This Chesterfield of the caboose told me we were approaching Hog Mountain, a moonshiners' stronghold, noted for its reluctance to contribute to the revenues of the government and for the weirdness and grandeur of its scenery."

"He said he had to go back to the engine and tend to his fire, and he advised me to take a seat in the observatory of the caboose and enjoy the phantasmora."

"I took his advice, and found that we were traveling up into the mountain, and that the scenery was all that he claimed for it. I was taking in the scene, when I noticed a tall mountaineer making his way down a rugged path toward us."

"He carried a long rifle, and was accompanied by a lean, lanky coon dog. He reached the railroad track just as we passed, and, spring me looking out the observatory window like a blooming Juliet scouring the horizon for a ditiary Romeo, he pointed his rifle at me and commanded: 'You-all throw up your hands!'"

"I looked at him in amazement, but lost no time in doing the upward Deserte movement."

"Say you moth-eaten mountaineer! I shouted, 'what's the answer to the riddle you're propounding? Have I unconsciously butted into a Hatfield-McCoy combination, or do you imagine this is a treasure train?'"

"You-all stop that train, or I'll blow your darned head off," he replied.

"How the heck do you expect me to stop the train?" I shouted back. "Run along, Reuben, and file your request with the engineer. He's running this scenery-special from the front end."

"For a moment he looked as if he doubted my statement; then, lowering his gun, he sprinted for the forward end, while I climbed down from my perch and started out to investigate."

"As I stepped from the train, it came to a stop, and when I reached the engine the mountaineer had the engineer and his man-of-all-work lined up with their hands as far from earth as possible. He caught sight of me and in a wink he had me doing the high reach alongside the others.

"Say, growled the engineer, 'what you want to do? Steal this outfit? There isn't anything on board you can take, unless it's the coal in the tender."

"Don't you all give me no sars," cautioned the tall man of the mountains. "I'm going to borrow this train and you-un'll have to run it for me."

"Well, he made us all clunk aboard, packing us into the cab, and ordered the engineer to start up."

"Say," queried the engineer, with his hand on the throttle, "aren't you going to ride?"

"No," replied the mountaineer, "I ain't never been on one of those pesky things, an' I ain't going to take no chances. I guess I can hoof it and keep up to you; but don't you-all try to run away from me, or I'll plug you full of lead!"

"The engineer started up, and the highland holdup man had no trouble keeping up with us. The queer procession proceeded for several miles, then we came to a place where a track branched off from the main line into the heart of the wilderness. Here he brought the engine to a stop by pointing his gun at the engineer and shouting, 'Whoa!'"

"Now, you-all git down and move the track over so we can go up this 'ere way," he commanded, addressing the man-of-all-work."

"That worthy lost no time in climbing down and throwing the switch, and we moved along the old unused track."

"What the nation does that elongated outlaw want to run us up this old lumber line for?" growled the engineer. "There hasn't been a train along here since the road stopped taking out timber."

"Say, you train robber!" shouted the man-of-all-work, addressing the patriarchal pirate in his most courtly manner. "Will you kindly inform us whether we are going and why, and what is our doom?"

"You-all 'll find out soon enough," he answered. "Shut up!"

"We proceeded for about three miles, and then the grizzled guerrilla commanded the engineer to stop. He told the fireman to fix his fires so they would last for a couple of hours. When everything was ready he lined us up in single file, with the lanky coon dog in the lead, and made us precede him along a path in the wilderness. In about fifteen minutes we came to a cabin in a clearing. In answer to a whistle from our captor, a woman appeared at the door."

"Mandy," he said, "I've brought company for dinner. Rustle around lively. These gents is in a hurry."

"In short time the meal was ready, and we all sat down. It knocked the wind out of me to hear that venerable villain ask a divine blessing on the repast, but it didn't spoil my appetite."

"After we had finished and the table had been cleared, our host procured writing materials and placed them on the table."

"I want one of you-uns to write a letter," he said. "Guess you-all had better do it," he continued, addressing me."

"I expressed my willingness to accommodate him, and prepared to stenograph his dictation."

"This here letter," he said, "is to be wrote to the president of the United States."

"I indited the superscription and waited for him to commence dictation."

"Mr. President," he started, and then continued:

Dear Sir:—

This here section of the country has been pestered by a lot of no-account revenue men huntin' for moonshiners. They made it unpleasant for us moonshiners and we-all has had to feed them pretty darn often. To prove to you that these revenue men send down here are no-account critters, I am sending you by railroad a keg of first-class moonshine whiskey which I made in my cabin while your varmint was there eating my grub. I guess you-all will find it all right, but there is no use you sending any more of them critters down here to get me, for I am going away. Please excuse the writing, as it was done by a no-account railroad man.

Yours truly,
JAKE K. TOLLIVER.
(mark)

"Quite an expressive epistle," commented the pug-nosed brakeman.

"Yes," replied Monk. "That mountaineer had the art of letter writing down fine. After I had finished my stenographic duties, that moonshiner produced a five-gallon keg and made us lug it down to the train. He told the engineer to see that it was delivered to the president along with the letter. Then he bade us adieu and told us to clear out."

"We backed out of that wilderness, and eventually reached our destination."

"And was the liquor sent to the president?" asked the pug-nosed brakeman.

"Not in a thousand years!" exclaimed Monk. "Somehow or other that keg sprung a leak, an' before we reached our destination every drop of the liquor was gone. If the train hadn't run so slow, we might have saved some of it."

Potash in United States.

A discovery of a deposit of potash within the United States was made some time ago, though little has been done in the way of its development.

The department of the interior has expressed the hope that this supply would for some time at least make the farmers of this country independent of foreign sources. It lies, however, still undeveloped. Germany, up to now, has had a world monopoly of potash.

HELP FOR POTATO GROWERS

Finest of Tubers May Be Grown With the Aid of Embalming Fluid, Experiments Show.

It seems very curious that a chemical extensively used to preserve instead of succumb to decay as a help toward growing good potatoes, but such is the case, remarks an exchange.

It has been found that a proper solution of formaldehyde will insure a most excellent crop of the finest potatoes, where it has formerly been quite difficult to make certain soil grow anything but a very inferior crop.

To prevent scabby or rusty-appearing potatoes, the potatoes to be planted should be soaked for two hours in a solution composed of one pint of pure formaldehyde to 50 gallons of water.

It may be placed in large tubs, and the potatoes put in burlap sacks and laid in the liquid for a couple of hours, and then spread out on clean grass to dry for an hour or more before cutting and planting.

The potatoes should be cut into pieces having two or more eyes from which to sprout.

One good plan where a number of bushels of potatoes are to be planted is to have the liquid in barrels, with spigot at the bottom for drawing off liquid.

Potatoes should not be gathered up, after being treated, in the same sacks or baskets they were in prior to being soaked, as they are apt to be reinfected more or less by the disease which is being fought.

In certain localities the potato has become so diseased it is almost impossible to secure pure healthy seed and this formaldehyde process is remedying the difficulty largely.

NATION HAD EXALTED IDEAS

Pyramids and Temples of Early Mexican Race Reveal Much to Student of Religion.

Religion and superstition are much combined in the mind of the Mexicans, the result of both ancient and modern creeds. As to the antique beliefs and cult, there is much that appeals to the philosopher in the religious structures and history of the prehistoric, semi-civilized peoples of Mexico, or indeed of Spanish-America, whether North or South.

The pyramids and temples which the Toltecs and the Aztecs and the Incas built have something grand and broad underlying their main idea, the idea of being able to get on their temples rather than in them.

There is ever a source of inspiration in being upon the point of an eminence, to commune with providence, rather than being immured within some gloomy walls, with toppling spires overhead. The spirit ever tries to get out, to ascend, and is exalted in accordance with its altitude.

Did not Moses at Sinai bring forth the enduring Decalogue from the summit of a great natural pyramid, rather than from the gloomy interior of a temple?

The exceedingly numerous pyramids throughout ancient Mexico seem to attest some exalted idea of a natural religion which found outlet and habitation in the great Teocallis.—New York Telegram.

An American.

A native of any part of North or South America is literally an American, since he is a native of one of the American continents. Usage, however, has narrowed the term so that "an American" is generally understood to be a citizen or native of the United States of America, while a native of Canada, Mexico, Central or South America is known as a "Canadian," "Mexican," "Brazilian," "Guatemalan," or the like. The reason for the usage does not lie in any feeling that the United States preempts, stands for, or overshadows the other parts of the western hemisphere, but simply in the fact that, while Canada, Mexico, Brazil, the United States of Colombia, etc., are words which admit of adjective formation, "American" is the only adjective which can be formed from the name of our country to denote its citizens or to apply to its interests, industries, cities, etc.

Wise Precaution.

Very few people are ambidextrous; that is, able to use the left hand as readily and skillfully as the right. But there is an amusing story of one Irishman who was careful to cultivate that art. When he was signing articles on board a ship he began to sign his name with his right hand, and then changed the pen to his left hand, and finished it.

"So you can write with either hand, Pat?" asked the officer.

"'Tis, sorr," replied Pat. "When I was a buoy me father (rest his soul) always said to me, 'Pat, fear to cut yer finger nails wid yer left hand, for some day ye might lose yer right!'"—Youth's Companion.

Blessing in Disguise.

"I don't see any billboards about here," said the visitor. "Do the residents object to that kind of advertisement?"

Yes, but their wishes in the matter had nothing to do with the disappearance of billboards hereabouts," said the Kansas man. "We have provided to thank for that."

"I don't understand."

"Well, every time we accumulate a stock of billboards a cyclone comes along and scatters them over six or seven counties."

ONLY A WOMAN

GOVERNORS PLACE O. K. ON SUFFRAGE

Issue is Heartily Endorsed at Conference of State Executives

URGE ITS ADOPTION HERE

Chiefs From States Where Women Vote Testify to the Benefits of Equal Franchise and Decry Its Opponents

At the recent conference of governors held in Boston, woman suffrage came in for almost as much attention as the regular business for which the conference had assembled. The issue was heartily endorsed by the governors and especially by those from the suffrage States.

Eight of the twenty-nine governors and ex-governors present were from the States where women vote and all of these men were warm in their praise of the way in which the women of their States have exercised their franchise rights.

"I can see as much sense in questioning the right of women to the ballot as in asking if the Lord's Prayer is a good thing," said Alva Adams, who was twice governor of Colorado. George N. Paulson, the present governor of Colorado, also ridiculed the antis' contention that woman suffrage works harm, declaring that the exercise of the ballot by the women of his State has proven to be a "political safety valve" on a number of occasions. He added that the charge that women are too emotional to vote right on questions of grave importance was ridiculous and said that Colorado's experience has been that women are capable of rendering calmer judgment than men when big issues arise.

"Neglect their homes? Of course not," said former Governor Carey of Wyoming, the first State to enfranchise women. "Why should they? Having the vote helps them to care for the home as it gives them a voice in the legislation that directly concerns all the questions that affect the home."

Women's Influence Good.

William Spry, governor of Utah, was equally emphatic in stating that Votes for Women was a success. "Women have voted in Utah since Statehood was granted in 1896, and have always exerted an influence for safe-guarding both the home and the State," he said.

Governor Hunt of Arizona said that even the antis in his State were now willing to admit that none of the evils predicted by opponents of suffrage have appeared.

Governor Arthur Capper of Kansas said:

"Kansas gave her women school suffrage and liked it. After which she gave them municipal suffrage and liked it better. In 1912 she gave them full suffrage and liked it best. Suffrage in Kansas has broadened woman's views of social life. It has centered her thoughts on home and its needs and has given a new and beneficial influence in the life of the State. It has in no way detracted from her womanliness or her character, but has strengthened both. Kansas will never go back to a rule of all the people by a part of them."

The question as to whether women really used the ballot after it was granted them, won a laugh from Governor Dunne of Illinois. "Look at the way they voted in Chicago," he said. "More than a quarter of a million of them turned out at the last mayoralty election there."

Suffrage States Wealthy. The high per capita wealth of the suffrage State was Governor Moses Alexander's answer to the suggestion that suffrage might have a bad effect on public finances.

"The per capita wealth of all the suffrage States," he said, "is above the average of those in which the women do not vote."

"Woman suffrage is a distinct asset to the State of Washington," said Governor Earnest Lister. "No one, except perhaps someone disgruntled on account of its having interfered with some pet scheme, has ever even suggested that Washington was not better for it."

All of the governors from the suffrage States agreed that the men of Pennsylvania, New York, New Jersey and Massachusetts would make no mistake if they approved the suffrage amendments at the polls on election day.

FORMER GOVERNOR STONE FAVORS WOMAN SUFFRAGE; WILL VOTE "YES"

Add to the list of the "Big Men" of Pennsylvania who favor equal rights for women, the name of Governor William A. Stone. In a recent interview, this lawyer, soldier, statesman, sportsman and all-around "man's man" said:

"I know of no good reason why women should not be permitted to vote, except the present law. I am going to vote to change that law."

"If I should vote against woman suffrage I would not be displaying that gallantry and respect for the sex which my mother taught me to practice."

"Voting is no more masculine than feminine. Voting is not degrading except as the voter degrades it. Women are not 'too refined' to vote. Their voting would bring the ballot to a higher state of refinement, and it surely needs it."

CROPS DOING WELL, SAYS

THE STATE WEATHER BUREAU

The crop summary of Pennsylvania for the week by the local Weather Bureau is as follows: "The rainfall was very uneven, being excessive in some places and light in others. In general the excess did but little harm, while in the drier sections the soil contained ample moisture from previous rains. Continued high temperatures were favorable for corn and crowded it rapidly toward maturity. The warmth was also favorable for buckwheat and for most of the forage crops. Potato rot seemed to increase considerably and has become much more general throughout the state. Seeding was in progress at most places in the Southern counties and was begun in the northern part of the state."

"Reviewing the crop season to date it may be said that on the whole it was the most favorable for several years. Most crops grew slowly on account of deficient temperatures, but the rainfall was ample and of frequent occurrence so that during the entire season there was no period of drought to stunt or check the growth of vegetation."

NEED OFFICIAL COUNT IN LAWRENCE COUNTY

An official count of the vote cast at Tuesday's primary began at noon Friday in Lawrence county. Upon this count depends the question of whether Judge William L. Porter will be given a place on the ticket as an opponent of S. M. Emery. The question is whether Emery received a majority of the vote in the county.

PROTEST HAD MUCH WEIGHT

Woman's Speech Reached the Conscience of All People Who Had a Desire to Think.

We have now before us an account in the Hereford Times of the fine protest made by Mrs. Davis in court at the recent Herefordshire assizes. The case was the trial of a domestic servant for causing the death of her newborn child. She was found guilty and sentenced by Mr. Justice Avey to six months' imprisonment, she having been already imprisoned since November. On hearing the sentence, Mrs. Davis, who with her husband, Rev. G. H. Davis, assistant vicar choral of Hereford cathedral, has done so much for the protection of women against injustice, rose in court and protested against the proceedings as unfair. "If the father of the child were here," she began, "no man would dare to pass sentence." She continued; but the judge ordered her to be turned out of court. While the police were carrying out the order Mrs. Davis repeated, "I protest as a woman and a mother." After she had been removed the judge gave instruction that "that woman" should not be admitted again; but her point had been gained. Mrs. Davis, by her action, revealed not only to the court, but to the whole surrounding district, that in all justice, the man who is at least equally guilty with the woman in these cases should not escape scot-free while all punishment falls on the woman. This might seem an axiom of law, but it is not law at all, and both judges and laymen appear surprised at it.—London Votes for Women.

MADE SELECTION OF NURSES

Clever Old German Surgeon Tried Ruse That Proved Many Unfit to Serve.

A wise old surgeon in one of the big garrison cities of Germany was called upon recently to select nurses to go to the front. A class of 20 had completed their training and were brought before him.

"I congratulate you," he began, "on your willingness to serve the cause of the fatherland. Previous experience, however, have shown me that all does not go well with those serving in the sanitary divisions, that the work proved distasteful to them. Will those who prefer to serve exclusively in the officers' ward please step forward?"

Shyly and blushing, 15 of the 20 young women stepped out of the line, whereupon the surgeon continued in his amiable tones: "I thank you, ladies. Of your service I shall not avail myself. Your decision indicates to me that you have not yet attained the necessary degree of earnestness required of those serving our wounded soldiers."

Then he selected the five who had remained in the original line.

A Ringing Reply.

Jaunting in the jungle has seemingly added orchids to the speech with which Mr. Roosevelt ornaments his social repartee, as the following incident will show:

A friend of the colonel's is the father of six daughters, who have recently acquired a sailboat. One of the girls was showing the craft to the former president a short time ago, when he said, with a puzzled frown: "But I can't see the fitness of the boat's name." Chimes. Why did you call it that?"

"Oh," smiled the girl. "You see it's named after us—Charlotte, Hortense, Isabel, Mildred, Elise and Sylvia. We just used the first letters of our six names in order of age, and it happened that they spelled 'Chimes.'"

"Yes, yes, I see. Very appropriate," was the colonel's ready reply. "In fact, no name could be more so, in view of you girls being such belles."

Queen Victoria's Bible.

A revival of interest in religion is one of the features of the war. Soldiers going to the front have been supplied with Bibles and have been given splendid advice by their generals. Churches have been filled by those who have remained at home, for in a time of great catastrophe like this the mind of mankind instinctively turns to a Power higher than itself. This serves to recall the fact that the late Queen Victoria was an earnest student of the Bible and deeply interested in personal religion. In the British museum the visitor will find a copy of the pocket Testament which Queen Victoria gave to Lord Gough, on the fateful of which she wrote a couple of her favorite texts. The verses are I Cor. 13:4 and 3.—Leslie's

COMPLIMENTARY PROGRAM

Prof. E. James changed his programmatic address to "Mother of Mine," wrote, and for his encore sang what was programmed, "Somewhere a Voice is Calling." Later, like everyone else in the program he pleased Prof. C. A. Dobson of the vocal department of the California Normal, gave his ability in the programmed song, "The Circle Love Song." Dudley Back, Mr. Dobson is a wonderful baritone who is a popular soloist here as well as elsewhere.

Prof. I. T. Daniel, who was in charge of the program contributed one solo number, "Invictus" Bruno Huhn and received perhaps the most tumultuous applause of all in appreciation of his efforts. His solo work was thoroughly well done.

One of the most entertaining features of the entire program was the reading of Miss Mary Chester. Miss Chester had two splendid places in the program. She first recited "Danny Deever" the beautiful Kipling story, and for her second number much to the gratification of the audience gave "An April Shower," Locke.

The concluding number of the program was that of the sextet from "Lucia di Lammermoor," Donizetti, which was appreciably well sung by Misses Hawthorne and Isabella Dorbritz and Messrs Kinder, James, Dobson, and Daniel.

Patronesses for the concert were Mrs. C. F. Thompson, Mrs. Kerfoot, W. D. P. Mrs. W. R. McKean, Mrs. H. J. Booth, Mrs. W. D. Pollock, Mrs. Wesley G. Mead, Mrs. R. C. Mountsier, Mrs. C. R. Peregrine, Mrs. Franklin P. McCloskey, Miss Minnie B. Richardson, Mrs. Vivian P. Stewart, Mrs. J. Clive Enos, Mrs. W. S. James, Mrs. C. J. Morgan, Mrs. Earl Piper, Mrs. C. S. Van Voorhis, Mrs. A. O. Davis and Mrs. A. R. Mountsier.

Miss Bosson shortly will leave for Baltimore, Md., where she will enter the Peabody Conservatory as a student of violin. Last year she won a scholarship there by her wonderful playing. The concert Friday evening was arranged by Prof. I. T. Daniel, and a good sized audience attended.
